

KAREN WILLIAMSON, DDS, PA

PHOTO BY MARCIE FLORANCE

For Dr. Karen Williamson, the sweetest part of being a dentist is the relationships. “The best part of my 28 years in practice in the Rockwall/Rowlett community is having my patients share their personal stories with me. Hearing about their family weddings, births, what their kids are doing, and how their dentistry needs relate to their individual lifestyles is what we enjoy and love,” Dr. Williamson said. “It’s the lives behind the teeth that make us strive for excellence in what we do.”

Dr. Williamson’s approachable, friendly nature puts patients at ease, making them feel like they are part of her family. “I’ve listened to my patients’ dental needs as they relate to their lives and how having a better smile can help them professionally, as well as personally.” Connecting on a personal level is what Dr. Williamson does best. A trusted relationship is formed as patients share their life experiences with her. She recalls the time a grandfather came to the office wanting to whiten his teeth because his grandkids thought they were yellow. “After we whitened his teeth, he was so proud to show off his new smile to his family.” Heartwarming stories are shared by patients every day. Dr. Williamson was delighted to help a mother of the bride prepare for her daughter’s wedding by giving her a smile makeover. “The results were beautiful and she was able to enjoy her daughter’s wedding with confidence.” When a patient shared their job loss, Dr. Williamson said, “I felt their pain over the loss of their job, only to journey in their joy when they were able to land a new one.”

“The best part of my 28 years in practice in this Rockwall/Rowlett community is having my patients share their personal stories with me. Hearing about their family weddings, births, what their kids are doing, and how their dentistry needs relate to their individual lifestyles is what we enjoy and love,” Dr. Williamson said. “It’s the lives behind the teeth that make us strive for excellence in what we do.”

PERSONALIZED CARE IN A FAMILY-ORIENTED ENVIRONMENT

Dr. Williamson’s lifelong patient relationships are a testament to her caring, loving nature. She enjoys getting to know them and their extended families. She takes the time to sit down and individually consult with them, carefully considering all treatment options and ensuring that their questions are answered. “I’m now treating generations of families, and I love that,” she said. From kids’ broken teeth to weddings and careers, Dr. Williamson is there to celebrate their victories and comfort them when discouraged. “Creating beautiful smiles and transforming my patients’ lives from the inside out is a truly rewarding experience,” she said.

CONTACT

560 WEST RALPH HALL PARKWAY
SUITE 104

ROCKWALL, TEXAS 75032

(469) 402-0024

KARENWILLIAMSONDDS.COM